

ARFID (Avoidant & Restrictive Food Intake Disorder);
Diagnosing, understanding and intervening.
A Workshop for Professionals.

Dr Gillian Harris & Dr Elizabeth Shea. at the University of Birmingham
25th September 2019

The workshop comprises:-

- Defining and diagnosing ARFID (Avoidant and Restrictive Food Intake Disorder).
- Co-morbid conditions; ASD, Pica.
- Differential diagnoses in toddlers; lack of early experience with foods.
- Differential diagnosis in later childhood; Anorexia Nervosa.
- Planning interventions for children (according to age and co-existing diagnoses).

Dr Elizabeth Shea is a Clinical Psychologist who has worked with children and young people who refuse and avoid foods for almost two decades. Previously a Primary School Teacher and a Counsellor with Childline UK, she started her Psychology career with the National Autistic Society where she developed a career-long interest in eating difficulties in autism. Her clinical and research interest is Avoidant and Restrictive eating in both autistic and neuro-typical populations and she is a recognised writer, trainer and speaker on this subject across the UK and Ireland

Dr Gillian Harris has carried out research into infant and child feeding behaviour and appetite regulation at the University of Birmingham, School of Psychology, UK, for the past 38 years. She was also a Consultant Paediatric Clinical Psychologist for 30 years, and led a feeding clinic at The Children's Hospital, Birmingham, UK, where she worked with infants and children who were food averse. She is frequently asked to talk and train in various national and international contexts.

Dr Shea and Dr Harris have recently written a well accepted book on diagnosis and interventions in ARFID.

Fee: £180 (This includes lunch, all snacks and a workbook). Full payment is required to secure your place by September 13th. (Early bird rate £165 if you pay by the 1st September) (NB: we are unable to invoice health authorities.)

Contact: gillian.harris@foodrefusal.co.uk for registration details

